

I am extremely concerned over the increasing damage to wildlife and birds by our rapidly developing technology. One of them is the high rate of mortality of migratory birds caused by communication towers. Your agency must implement a systematic review of communication towers and bird mortality, a research program and immediate environmental reviews. We should not naively expect the industry to take any action whatsoever to save song birds and the avian nations in general; you must act NOW to implement immediate protection based on existing knowledge.